Announcements in Theatre

9:45-11 AM Session #1

Sound System Optimization: What, Why, and Some How*—Chuck Hatcher, UC-CCM, will lead an introductory discussion of sound system optimization from a designer's perspective. What it is, why its important and how SMAART software can help to turn a bunch of loudspeakers into a coherent system for musicals and dramas.

Video Collaboration*—Since time is money, how can we collaborate more effectively from a distance? Denison University's Instructional Technologist Liaisons, Cheryl Johnson and Jeff Braumberger, will share tips & tricks for video collaboration through freeware sites like Skype and Tokbox.

SAM, A Robotic Stage Hand*—Greg Bell, Joshua Branch, & Jonathan Seiller, Otterbein College, will focus on the development of their Scenic Automated Mover (SAM), and how the technology behind SAM can be used for simpler tasks in theater such as special effects.

History, It Won't Kill You*—Jeff Gress, Capital University, and other panelists will share answers to the question of who created the ERS and other tools we use everyday.

Going Green Behind the Scenes*—Paul Vincent, Vincent Lighting Systems, will enlighten us on how we can be more environmentally friendly in our productions with the latest use of LEDs lighting and scenic technology.

11:15 AM -12:30 PM Session #2

Scenic Painting Without Brushes*—Pam Lavarney, Wright State University, will demonstrate techniques using non-brush tools.

Basic Console Programming on the Strand Palette Series*—Representatives from Vincent Lighting Systems will be conducting a hands-on session on Strand's popular Palette Series lighting console. Topics covered may include: console setup, patching, recording cues, and general operation.

SAM, A Robotic Stage Hand 2*—This session will proceed deeper into the capabilities of microcontrollers and SAM. Any attendees who have created small robotic units are invited to share them at this time during the Q&A.

Draping Techniques Using the Half-Scale Dress Form*—Regina Truhart, David Arevelo, Emily Willie, Amanda Janke, and Becky Roesfelt of UC-CCM will present a session which will allow participants to try several draping and patterning techniques using half-scale dress forms. For more information: <http://usittcostumetechnology.blogspot.com>

Cloud Collaboration*—Since time is money, how can we collaborate more effectively from a distance and share documents, drawings sketches, and research from multiple locations? Denison University's Instructional Technologist Liaisons, Cheryl
